

Painting Workshops

with Portrait Artist Robin Damore

Students paint in oil and draw for 3 days, learning the techniques Robin uses to create realistic skin tones and capture a subject's likeness. This workshop will be an opportunity to work with live models, as well as techniques for working with photographs. Students will study direct and indirect painting methods as Robin provides detailed painting and materials demonstrations combined with one-on-one instruction. This is a class that works for beginners and intermediate painters.

If you have ever wanted to learn to paint portraits or would like to deepen and improve your existing skills, this is a workshop that will both challenge and enrich your ability to think, risk and improve.

Robin Damore is a full-time portrait artist whose work is in collections across the country. Robin studied with Russian master, Leonid Gervits, in New York where she learned the old master's techniques she teaches in her workshops.
